ResidentialNYC.com* Changing the Way Consumers Shop for Homes

--Site Surpasses 2.5 Million Hits--

NEW YORK, November 13, 2007 – The Real Estate Board of New York, Inc. (REBNY), the city's oldest and largest real estate trade association, today announced that as of November 4, ResidentialNYC.com has logged more than 2.5 million hits and 103,000 page views by nearly 20,000 unique visitors. The average unique visitor to ResidentialNYC.com spent nearly nine minutes on the site.

The numbers indicate that visitors are viewing multiple listings and accessing the plethora of information on the site, with each accessing an average of five pages. By clicking a property listing link, visitors are directed to a page on a participating broker's site, so those are not counted among the five pages viewed by the average unique visitor.

Launched on September 28th, ResidentialNYC.com is the first comprehensive Web site enabling homebuyers to link to thousands of exclusive home listings in New York City from thousands of REBNY residential member brokers. The site will provide access to condos, co-ops, townhouses and homes both for sale and for rent. ResidentialNYC.com also contains a wealth of information about New York City's residential real estate market, neighborhoods, school districts and more, making it the only true one-stop destination for New York City homebuyers on the Web.

"Although it launched only a little over a month ago, ResidentialNYC.com already is changing the way consumers shop for homes in New York City," said Steven Spinola, REBNY's president. "Gone are the days that homebuyers needed to visit dozens of Web sites to get a comprehensive listing of available homes for sale meeting their needs. And because of REBNY's strict rules governing brokers' listings through our RLS System, home buyers can be assured that if a home is displayed on ResidentialNYC.com, it is actually available. There's no bait and switch on ResidentialNYC.com."

The REBNY Listing Service (RLS), a system in which REBNY member brokers have shared their exclusive listings with each other since 2003, serves as the backbone of ResidentialNYC.com, which makes those listings accessible to the public. The Web site facilitates home searches based on purchase or rental, price, type of property, number of rooms, and neighborhood. When a listing is found, the user can link directly to the online posting of the property on a REBNY member brokerage firm's website to review details and broker contact information. The user also can save the listing in a "favorites" folder for future access or email a direct link about the property with notes.

ResidentialNYC.com also enables consumers to stay informed via email of listings that match their specific search criteria. The portal will offer consumers additional resources such as borough guides, neighborhood and school district information, a mortgage calculator, a glossary of standard real estate terms, buyer, seller and renter guides, FAQs, and a complete list of participating brokers and links to their websites. The site has added three additional brokerage firms since its launch, bringing the total number of firms on the site to 63. More are expected to join in the weeks and months ahead.

ResidentialNYC.com is powered by Trulia.com, the leading national real estate search engine, giving New York City home seekers access to Trulia's award-winning, intuitive interface and full set of free and interactive consumer tools. Initially, the largest number of listings on ResidentialNYC.com will be for Manhattan and parts of Brooklyn. Queens and Bronx properties are on the site as well. REBNY expects the number of outer borough listings to increase in the months ahead.

About The Real Estate Board of New York.

The Real Estate Board of New York is the city's leading real estate trade association with 12,000 members.
